Warning: Islam can seriously damage your health!!

Our governments, Federal and State, take their responsibilities seriously. They want to look after our health and safety, so we are given various warnings, both at work and in our private lives.

Workcover adverts urge us all to take care at work, lest we fall off buildings or suffer strain through constantly gazing at a computer screen.

For those of us who still smoke, cigarette packets carry grim reminders of the risks we are running, with graphic pictures of the consequences should we ignore the caution and continue our reckless ways.

Drivers are constantly reminded that “if you drink and drive you're a bloody idiot”, and there are many horrendous depictions of road accident victims to reinforce the message.

These days, it seems, there are warnings about everything – from having unprotected sex to eating unwashed lettuce.

But sadly, the one area the government has neglected is Islam, which has the potential to cause more death and destruction than all of these hazards. Why is that? Jihad - violent warfare against unbelievers - is the simple answer. Jihad is not a fringe belief, but a central plank of mainstream Islam. Ask “moderate” Sheikh Fehmi, Grand Mufti of Australia if you don’t believe me.
That is why I am making this one-off offer to our government. For a mere $100,000, I am willing to design posters to draw attention to the dangers we are facing, along the lines of the warnings on cigarette packets, maybe showing the splattered body parts of victims of jihad. For an extra $230,500 I’m prepared to rush to Officeworks and have them laminated, then dash over to Bunnings and buy hooks so they can easily be affixed to buildings. You have to agree, my prices are half the going rate given to Muslims (Kara-Ali was thrown $200,000 to investigate the radicalisation of young Muslims and the government plans to spend $461,000 assisting Muslims integrate into the broader Australian community).

So come on guys in the government, here’s an offer you simply can’t refuse! But better contact me soon, as the offer is only open until the end of July.
